Re: CSA Proposed Amendments Relating to the Offering Memorandum Exemption

Dear Madams:

I am writing to comment on the proposed amendments to NI 45-106, in particular the proposed annual investment limits for non-accredited investors.

As a new investor into private equity investments, I am disappointed with the proposed new guidelines that would limit my ability to properly diversify my pension money.

When I left my previous employer, I decided to take control of my pension plan and sought the advice of a licensed financial professional. After numerous meetings (10-12) we decided to diversify the money, putting part of it in a product that will provide me with a guaranteed retirement starting at age 55. Another part of my pension went into private equity investments that are asset-backed and provide cash flow. The rest of it, I used to pay off debts.

With the private equity investments, we were careful to put no more than 5-10% into any one investment, as I know that there is always the risk of losing my initial investment. Together with my advisor, we read through the Offering Memoranda and Subscription Agreements, and she answered any questions I was not sure of. I also met some of the individuals who were running the companies that I was invested in.

I have worked many years to build up my pension and savings. I enjoy being able to invest my money where I feel I have the best ability to provide even more for my future. I hope you will not proceed with the proposed amendments to investment limits for us non-millionaires, because we are trying to get there.

This submission is being made on my own behalf.
