

Notice regarding extension of consultation on compensation of consumers of financial products and services

On December 9, 2011, the Autorité des marchés financiers (the “AMF” or the “Authority”) launched a consultation on the compensation of consumers of financial products and services.

The consultation was initially scheduled to end on February 7, 2012. However, given that some interested parties would like more time to submit their comments and given the importance placed by the AMF on this consultation, it was deemed appropriate to extend the time period.

The consultation period will therefore end on March 9, 2012.
