Dear Mr. Stevenson and Me Boudoin:

CSA Consultation Paper 25-401: Potential Regulation of Proxy Advisory Firms

Cameco Corporation supports the recommendations noted below as included in the letter from the Canadian Investor Relations Institute dated September 12, 2012 responding to the above referenced CSA Consultation Paper 25-401.

The CIRI recommendations include:

- (a) Proxy Advisory (PA) Firms should be required to disclose methodologies, sources of information, assumptions used to prepare their research reports and rationale for their voting recommendations;
- (b) PA Firms should prominently identify in the research reports and voting recommendations provided to their institutional investor clients any specific potential conflicts of interest with regard to the issuer and analyst/reviewer ownership interests;
- (c) PA Firms should be required to provide to all issuers draft research reports and voting recommendations for review for factual accuracy allowing 48 to 72 business hours for issuers to respond prior to the report being distributed to the PA Firm's clients;
- (d) PA Firms should be required to include in the final report to investors any comments provided by issuers regarding the review process, the research report and the voting recommendations;
