Life License Qualification Program (LLQP)

May 2015

LLQP Presentation of the Curriculum

As part of the initiative of the Canadian Insurance Services Regulatory Organizations (CISRO) to harmonize the Canadian life insurance qualification process (including group insurance), a Competency Profile was drafted in order to list, as competencies, the compiled tasks and operations that a life insurance agent can accomplish upon career entry. Following its publication, committees of subject matter experts (SMEs) were formed in order to derive an evaluation program which we refer to simply by the name of “Curriculum.”

DRAFTING AND EVOLUTION OF THE CURRICULUM

The Curriculum is the Life Licence Qualification Program (LLQP) component that defines expectations for competency assessment. It consists of a set of evaluation tables that specify the elements that need to be evaluated as part of the certification process.

The committees that drafted this document brought together agents and trainers from many provinces and included candidates having participated in the occupational analysis workshops (OAWs) held in 2012. These SMEs were given the opportunity to analyze, evaluate and improve the evaluated competencies’ relevance, structure and scope.

Contents relating to each competency were also determined.

Because this document constitutes the cornerstone of the LLQP, a survey was drawn up to evaluate global appreciation for its scope and relevance. Changes to the Curriculum were made based on identifiable trends among respondents’ feedback. Modifications were limited to minor adjustments to content lists and weightings. However, more important reorganizations served to better contextualize the importance of taxation for new life insurance agents.

Over the course of drafting the exam preparation manuals, some changes were made to the Curriculum. In this version, compared to the one published following the survey, the extent of the changes brought is variable. In most cases, adjustments correspond to small terminological changes. Some amount of detail has also been included to improve the clarity of the contents and to ensure that they reflect the material developed in the preparation manuals.

The most significant change is a small reorganization leading to the integration of a new competency sub-component and the contents defining it in the segregated funds and annuities module. Competency sub-component 2.4 aims to ensure that candidates are able to “Analyze the types of group retirement and investment plans that meet the client’s needs.” Component 2 has been accordingly rephrased to reflect this reorganization.

CURRICULUM COMPONENTS

The competencies presented in the Curriculum stem from the Competency profile but they are not reproduced integrally and textually. In fact, as opposed to the Profile, that includes competencies illustrating the full scope of the tasks and operations that are accomplished by an agent upon career entry, only the competencies and the competency components that relate to CISRO’s mandate have been selected for the licensing exams. Therefore, the Curriculum includes every aspect that must be mastered to practice ethically in accordance with consumer rights; it also takes into consideration the fact that many competencies are perfected over time, with practical experience.

Each evaluated competency corresponds to a module and all modules are equally weighted in the licensing process – i.e. all competencies must be mastered in order to obtain a license to practice.

Consequently, CISRO will impose a modular licensing exam and will publish standardized study material for each of the Curriculum's modules.

To reflect the structure of the Competency Profile, individual and group insurance (including group annuities) have been addressed together. Therefore, there is no module specifically devoted to group insurance. This structure stems from the information gathered during the OAWs regarding the similarities in the skills required to practice in both those sectors. Accordingly, the editing team has defined the term "client" in an inclusive manner; it may refer to an individual, a group or an employer.

The Curriculum's competencies are integrated groups of skills, knowledge, and strategies. Every competency is split into components and then further, into sub-components, in order for its nature and scope as well as the underlying evaluation objective to be explicit. Competency components are weighted to quantify their relative importance in the exam. Many factors influence weighting, namely the component's importance for consumer protection as well as the complexity and scope of its underlying concepts and contents.

Moreover, the components and sub-components refer to processes or results. They may be formulated identically for different competencies, yet each one is contextualized based on the competency to which it refers.

To provide further specifications, a list of related contents is included with each competency sub-component. The contents offer indications on the products, knowledge, behaviors or attitudes required to master the competency sub-component. These indications delimit the scope of evaluation and will be developed in the study material that will be published by CISRO for each module. Additional contents may be addressed by trainers wishing to increase their candidates' employability and ability to advance professionally.

And so, each of the Curriculum's modules is divided into three main parts:

- The weighting indicates an element's relative importance in the exam, which will translate into a corresponding number of questions (orange column).
- The competency components and competency sub-components define the competency's nature and scope (blue columns).
- The related contents specify the object of the evaluation and will be addressed in the study material (green columns).

The time allotted to write each of the exam's modules and the number of questions it contains is specified at the beginning of each table.

Due to the information it provides, the Curriculum is at once:

- An internal tool that will provide the framework for the development of study material, exam questions and licensing exams;
- A pedagogical planning tool that will guide trainers in their course development;
- An exam preparation tool that will instruct candidates on the nature and scope of the evaluated competencies.
